APPLIED SCHOLASTICS

In Johannesburg, South Africa, Education Alive have set up an academy that is producing excellent results. Two of the success stories, one from a staff member and one from a student, contain the following wins:

"As everything was new about my hat. I didn't know what fundraising is all about, but after studying it, I realized it was for getting massive funding from corporations, individuals and governments for the delivery of LRA Study Technology for the salvations of the peoples of South Africa. Practically I have done this for the past three to four days and I find no problems in contacting big companies. I am actually making use of the Study Tech I read".

"In fact, before I was unable to talk English with most people. But now I am able to read, write and talk with people because of this Learning Book which make me enjoy my study. Now I can say I am going to pass at the end of the year. Many people say I am good in English because of this course which had produced amazing results in my mind. At the same time I am able to told my friend amazing stories I have read because I understand what I am reading. Before this study technology I was afraid of speaking English now I am not afraid. I can't forget this study technology because I have learnt many things from it."

The Executive Director of Applied Scholastics in San Francisco was a guest lecturer at [REDACTED] in the San Francisco area. The class is a psychology class on family communication. The ED did a three hour workshop on acknowledgements to the class of 22 plus their professor. She had surveyed this. After the workshop, the professor said "L. Ron Hubbard's material is positively dynamite" and she found the talk enthralling. The professor said ED Applied Scholastics had "moved her class forward a giant step" and "they are at a whole new level now". She had cognitions herself about not acknowledging her husband when he pushed her buttons. The professor belongs to an organization of foster parents and wants workshops for them too.
